

Student's mental well-being and support services

As a Diak degree student, you have access to a range of student well-being services from student counsellors and school pastors to workshops and support groups.

Visit the campus-specific pages to find out more about the services.

Student counsellor services

Students may talk to a study guidance counsellor in confidence about social and financial issues and issues related to their studies. It is advisable to talk to the counsellor if problems occur that can distract a student from studying.

Personal matters may influence the progress and motivation of students and their studies. Students may be troubled by e.g. issues related to personal relationships, circumstances at the school or even their income.

A student counsellor provides the opportunity for students to discuss these issues confidentially with a professional, guiding and supporting students in their different circumstances.

Student well-being groups at Diak

Most Diak campuses provide multi-professional student well-being personals, whose task is to provide special measures to support students in coping with their studies when necessary. The most important goal is to prevent students from dropping out of their studies, which can be prevented by support.

The student well-being services, including student counsellor, school pastor and deacon are also available for students in Diak campuses.
